2013 Fall Seminar

Genealogical Potpourri:
A Little of This and a Little of That

19 October 2013
9:00 a.m. — 4:00 p.m.
check-in at 8:30 a.m.

Fairview Christian School

Seattle, Washington 98115
One definition of potpourri is a mixture of things, such as a musical medley. Most genealogists would consider hearing new genealogical information as a form of “music to their ears.” This fall, SGS is presenting for your genealogical “musical” pleasure a medley of presentations from very well versed genealogists.

Cyndi Ingle Howells, our local lady who started Cyndi’s List a few years ago, will delve into the problem of evaluating web sites. 13 years ago she presented a lecture entitled Evaluating Web Sites. All these years later several things have changed, while many things have stayed the same.

Karen Sipes is one of the most popular “teachers” in the Seattle area. She always draws large crowds because her presentations are clear, concise, and pertinent to in-depth genealogical research. This time she will be talking about the Homestead Act and homesteaders.

Many of you have heard presentations by Steven Morrison. He is nationally known and we’re lucky to have him in our area. Steven will give two presentations. The first will be on Peopling the British Isles – Genetic Origins of Ireland, Wales, Scotland, and England. You will learn of the new genetic discoveries about your British Isle ancestors. This information is based upon the book by Oxford professor Stephen Oppenheimer The Origins of the British (2006).

Steven will also give a presentation on Digging Up New Dirt – Unearthing the “Real” New England Immigrant. Do you believe that family associations know everything about their early New England ancestors? Well, guess again!
